THE STAGE.

Notes and Gossip About the Theater and Theater People.

MARY ANDERSON WILL RETIRE.

An Improbable Story—How Bronson Howard Works—Extravagance of Actors—Stage Chat, Etc.

Mary Anderson to Retire from the Stage.

At the close of the present season she will rest for a year or two. Dr. Hamilton Griffin, when asked, this morning, said it would undoubtedly be two years before she reappeared upon the stage. Her friends here say she has not been in good health for some time, and has grown rather thin with overwork. It is hoped by many that a portion of this two years' leave of absence will be spent with friends here, though no definite promise has been gained.—Louisville Times.

A Manager's Enterprise.

Manager (to beautiful young actress who has just made a successful debut)—You have exceeded my expectations. You have only to get well advertised and the public will adore you. Are you married?

Beautiful young actress (hesitatingly)—No.

M.—Then you must elope with somebody at once. It don't matter much who it is, although a rich dude would be best.

B. Y. A. (blushing deeply)—I beg your pardon, I could not do that. To tell the truth, since it must come out, I am married.

M.—Oh, you are? Very well then. You must get a divorce from your husband. Big thing. Full publicity. I'll have a lawyer draw up the papers right away.—Boston Courier.

How Bronson Howard Works.

Bronson Howard, who has evidently been inspired in his work by a honest literary ambition, always carefully maps out his plot before he thinks of anything else, although all the while he has his eyes and ears open studying characters which he intends to utilize some day in a play. Having completed the development of his story to the end, so that that part of the work is off his mind; having, so to speak, secured the cloth, he proceeds to cut it in the shape he has adopted, he arranges his climaxes and curtain scenes. He inclines to four acts, the introductory, the beginning, the development, the end. He selects his characters, develops their business, and then devotes himself to the dialogue. He never forces himself to work, and is very lenient with his muse, indeed.

He generally prepares everything mentally and seldom rewrites, never putting anything on paper until he is thoroughly satisfied with it. He never feels his work is done until the play is produced, and the usual rehearsal the next morning is over. He does not care to work under contract, because he does not like to be forced in his work, and is satisfied if he writes one drama a year. He prefers to develop his own inspirations rather than take hints for a drama to order. His more successful works have been entirely original, while his ordered plays, like the "Baron Rudolph" for the Knights, and "Fun in a Greenroom" for the Salisbury Troubadours, were not so successful, which he attributes to the fact that he has hampered in their development by the requirements of those for whom they were written.—New York Star.

An Improbable Story.

In the early days of newspapers they used to pay theatrical managers for items of information. Considering the extent to which advertisement by organ had been pushed of late, it is lucky for newspapers that they have abandoned this custom. In these days we are informed as to the many thousands actresses pay for their diamonds, wigs, dresses, hats, cloaks, etc., and American theatrical managers go so far as to advertise the salaries and fees of their leading actresses. The latest "boom" comes to us from France. Mr. Abbey and Maurice Grau are said to have engaged Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at a salary of £140 a night, a percentage on the receipts above a stipulated sum ("which," it is reckoned, will double her salary"), and to pay all her expenses and those of three attendants for a tour in America of twelve months. M. Pierre Berton is also engaged to support her at a salary of £400 a month. If we reckon wardrobe, journeys, Mme. Bernhardt's expenses (no small item), the expenses of her servants, the salaries of the other members of the company, authors' fees, scenery, etc., at a liberal sum, this means we are asked to believe that two practical business Americans imagine they are going to "play to" a sum of £259,200 in a year. In the face of the facts that Mme. Bernhardt is not new to America, that Mr. Wilson Barrett is sure to be the "craze" there, and that next year, with the railway war, is likely to be a very bad theatrical twelvemonth in the States, we are asked to believe that Mme. Bernhardt will play to £282 2s. 3d. a performance, and that she will act 313 times in the year—neither of which she is very likely to do.—St. James's Gazette.

Extravagance of Actors.

Curious traits are shown by actors during their travels. At home in time of vacation they may lead an almost humdrum life, but as soon as they start out on the road again they develop striking idiosyncrasies. One peculiar to a number of famous "stars" is extravagance. This is a trait found especially among the men. None of the stars of the present day, however, equal Fechter in reckless expenditure. He was a genuine Monte Cristo, living in sumptuousness so ruinous that he died an impoverished, broken-down, broken-hearted man. Fechter was an onfar as well as a gastronomic gourmet. For he had in his private apartments a table set with delicate edible and wines, which he had changed every few hours, even if they had not been touched, because they offended his sight. His hotel bills amounted to some $400 weekly.

The most extravagant liver among stars of to-day is Boucicault, though he is not reckless as was Fechter. He puts up at the best hotels, and always has a well-spread table in his parlor, but he contents himself with having it replenished. A bottle of champagne does not offend his eye until it is empty. He is hale, hearty, and lusty, and a "marvelous man," as he is called in the profession, especially since he married again.

Booth is a hermit, caring for the society of only a few warm friends. He is an inveterate smoker and a great coffee drinker. He lives well, but not extravagantly. Barrett is the social lion of the profession, having everywhere a host of society friends. Salvini, not being proficient in the English language, mingles only with friends of his own nationality. He has the reputation of being close. The Florences live expensively.

A writer on the idiosyncrasies of star actresses has found but few instances of downright extravagance among them, for most of them, while living well, do not live extravagantly. An exception was Adelaide Neilson, who lived in royal style and entertained so lavishly that there was usually a row of empty bottles outside her door. Among actresses of to-day Modjeska exacts the most elegant surroundings. She always occupies a number of rooms en suite—two bedrooms, a parlor, a dining-room, and a boudoir. These are for herself and her husband, extra rooms being engaged for the maids. In the furnishing of her suite of rooms two things are indispensable—a piano in the parlor and an open-grate fire in the dining-room, with an English hob to put the kettle on. Like all Sclavs she and her husband are great tea-drinkers. They carry their special tea with them—a particular kind of Assam Valley Chop. They also have their own kettle, which they use in their private car when traveling among the one-night stands. Modjeska is an informal entertainer and the passports to her hospitality are neither wealth nor rank, but talent and a good appetite. One of her maids is the Hannah who served poor Adelaide Neilson. Fanny Davenport travels with her husband, physician and maid. She is really an invalid, and has been known to leave the stage in the middle of a scene to receive an injection of morphine from the doctor, who is in constant attendance behind the scenes. Since she began to play Fedora she leads a retired life, as the part is the most exacting and exhausting that has ever been written. Mary Anderson lives economically on her travels and spends her money during her vacation. Jananschek, being herself a good cook, picks out her hotels according to the reputation of their chefs.—New York Mail and Express.

Stage Chat.

MINNIE MADDERN, the actress, writes love stories.

A St. Louis paper calls Mary Anderson the female Edwin Forrest of the American stage.

MARIE PRESCOTT, the actress, has taken to the lecture field and gives her experience "Among the Stars." She speaks of Salvini as the "star of stars."

MRS. LANGTRY seems to be attempting to revolutionize the present craze for gorgeous apparel on the stage, as in her new piece, "Enemies," an adaptation by Mr. George Coghlan, the brother of Rose Coghlan, the dresses are all very plain and simple. Whether she will succeed is to be doubted.

It is likely that Mr. Lawrence Barrett will produce Mr. Boker's "Glaucaus" during his next engagement at the New York Star Theater, which begins in August. This is a drama in verse based upon Bulwer's "Last Days of Pompeii." Mr. Barrett will be Glaucaus. The concluding scene of the play will represent the eruption of Vesuvius. During Mr. Wilson Barrett's engagement at the Star, "Claudian," which ends with an earthquake, will be produced.

With Pleasure.

WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., March 27.
Editor Sentinel: In THE SENTINEL of March 24 there appeared an item in reference to Mr. Frank Zuber, a young man of Marion township, this county, which I desire to have rectified. The item reads as follows: "Mr. Frank Zuber, near Poe, this county, was declared insane. His mania arises from bad habits." I am pleased to say that I have known him long and intimately; that his personal character is above reproach, and that he had no evil habits. His alienation arises from cerebral atrophy. Hoping that you will correct the misapprehension, I remain yours, truly,
GEO. N. WORLEY, M. D.

"Many cases of fever and ague, dumb ague and congestive chills, were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of your Simmons Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of your valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fever, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. Believe me, when I say I was a sufferer for years with liver disease, and only found relief by using your medicine."

The cooper strike at Terre Haute has ended, and the men have resumed work.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones.—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Eaton, Co.

I find Ely's Cream Balm good for catarrh of long standing.—M. N. Lasley, 1934 West Chestnut St., Louisville.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-cadwly.

Sept. 5—Congressional Delegates to be Chosen
May 1.

The democratic county central committee met this afternoon. Mr. William Kaough called the meeting to order and Louis Fox acted as secretary. After routine business Mr. Kaough resigned, saying it was not customary for postmasters to mingle in politics. The county convention will be held September 4.

New York, March 30.—Gould and Powderly and associates began a conference at 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Hoxie, in St. Louis, is connected with communication by direct wire, and is taken an active part in the conference. The outlook for an agreement is very favorable.

The conference adjourned to meet tomorrow morning. Considerable progress was made but no details have been made public.

SOME TRAINS RUNNING.

St. Louis, March 30.—Two freight trains were started out from the Missouri Pacific yards this morning, guarded by a strong police force. It is stated the company could now run out their regular number of trains could the necessary number of men be procured to man them. In East St. Louis several attempts by railway companies to start out freight trains have been resisted by the strikers. No opposition, however, was offered to the efforts of the Washburn officers to resume freight traffic and they are now sending out freight trains.

Martin Irons arrived this morning. Three hundred and fifty men employed by the St. Louis Transfer company reported for duty at the regular hour this morning, and when about to begin duties were told by the superintendent that it had been decided to furnish them the protection of a squad of deputy United States marshals to accompany them during the day and guard them. This was what the men were waiting, and they immediately struck, declaring they desired no protection. No freight can be now brought across the river.

Last Night's Report.

New York, March 30.—An inquiry at Mr. Gould's office yesterday evening was answered by the following statement, of which Mr. Gould was the author:

Mr. Powderly has evidently misunderstood the meaning of the telegram that was sent Sunday night to Mr. Hoxie. Our position is that this strike has been in a condition for arbitration all the time. We had an agreement with the workmen for some time, that all differences were to have been submitted for arbitration before any strike should be resorted to. Manager Hoxie has this matter in hand. He has full control and the matter must be settled with him. We are just where we were before Sunday's conference.

Mr. Gould, yesterday, sent the following letter to Mr. Powderly, who makes it public, as a matter referred to in an interview with Mr. Gould. The letter is marked "personal."

"MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, New York, March 29, 1886."

"T. V. Powderly, Esq.:"

"DEAR SIR:—The papers this morning published the following:

Jay Gould has consented to our proposition for an arbitration and so telegraphed Vice-President Hoxie. Order the men to resume work at once."

(Signed) T. V. POWDERLY, G. M. W."

"They published an interview with you, which leads one to think that the officers of your order in St. Louis may misconstrue your message into consent on the part of this company to conform to the requirements contained in the letter from the secretary of your order, dated Philadelphia, March 27, which in my letter to you, of the same date, I declined to consider. You will remember that at our conference of Sunday, I said to you that the position of this company was unchanged in this respect and that the whole matter was left in the hands of the first vice-president and general manager, with the instructions contained in my telegram to him, which was written before my interview with you and read to you at the time. This telegram stated: 'We see no objection to arbitrate any difference between the employees, past or future.' While I feel confident that your understanding of this matter is the same as my own, I write you this in order that there may be no grounds for misunderstanding hereafter."

Very Respectfully Yours,
JAY GOULD,
President Mo. Pacific R. Co."

When this was received by Mr. Powderly, he wrote down these notes, which were taken to the conference and read to Mr. Gould:

"Do I understand you, from your personal letter of this date, that your conference arbitration, and shall I so telegraph Martin Irons?"

When the committee arrived at Mr. Gould's office, he had gone out, but they were received by the second vice-president, Hopkins, who made this answer to Mr. Powderly:

"You may say distinctly to him, no, we do not. He is not so to understand that letter, but he is simply referred to Mr. Gould's written communication to him, which he is prepared to carry out in every particular."

The committee left Mr. Gould's office and returned to the Astor house. Powderly sent to each of the following gentlemen: Messrs. Daly, Irons and Hoxie, at Sedalia, St. Louis and Fort Worth:

"NEW YORK, March 30.—Complications have arisen since yesterday morning as to the method of arbitration. Another conference will be held to-day."

T. V. POWDERLY, G. M. W."

"The conference of yesterday morning did not amount to anything, because Mr. Powderly could not be there," continued a member of the board. "At the morning conference, there were present Messrs. McDowell, Hayes, Gould, Hopkins and Sigo and at the afternoon conference, where Messrs. Turner, McDowell and Hopkins."

Mr. Powderly last evening said: "I have no reason to believe that Mr. Arthur has issued an order to the Knights of Labor who belong to the Brotherhood of Engineers, to leave the Knights. I do not think he has done so. If he has, it is done simply as a matter of discipline."

Archibald, March 30.—The strike situation here yesterday was very serious. The strikers, not satisfied with simply "killing" engines, tampered with the switches and stopped the train. The men were more reckless than at any other time during the strike. They declare that Powderly has sold them out. The company has secured a limited number of men and will try to start up the shops to-morrow. Warrants are out for the arrest of about 100 strikers.

Lincoln Park.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

HELLO!

A Long Distance Telephone Invented.

Whispers are Heard a Distance of 878 Miles Over Railroad Telegraph Wires.

Emma Molloy and Cora Lee are Severely Arraigned by the State Attorneys.

A NEW PHONE.

A Whisper Heard at a Distance of 878 Miles.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
YOUNGSTOWN, March 30.—A test was made yesterday of the new long distance telephone transmitter, the invention of Dr. Rose, of Palmyra, Ohio. A telegraph wire was used, running to Freeport, Ill., with a return wire on other poles, making a distance of 878 miles. The faintest whisper was heard distinctly over the long line. It is entirely unlike the Blake transmitter in action and principle.

LEE-MOLLOY.

Cora Charged With Murder and Emma as Accessory Thereto.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 30.—Yesterday when court convened the room was crowded. The motion that the case be dismissed was overruled and the attorneys for defense having no witnesses to present, W. D. Hubbard opened argument for the state. He said that the prosecution would ask that Cora Lee be held for murder in the first degree and that Mrs. Molloy be held as an accessory after the fact.

The attorney then proceeded to tear to pieces George Graham's confession of the murder and said it was made to shield Cora Lee. "The diabolical statement that he put her throat is utterly false, because there was no blood on the garments about the collar. It says she walked to the farm, but there was no mud on her underclothing or shoes, which is proof that she did not. She must have got there by some conveyance. In a small pasture on the farm was found a pair of drawers, supposed to be out by a pair of scissors, which go to show Cora Lee had usurped Sarah's place as wife and she had more motive than anybody to assist in her destruction, she was silent as to making inquiry about Sarah, until Charles told her. She takes the household goods of the murdered woman without making inquiry among the children. I pronounce her guilty of murder."

His review of Mrs. Molloy's connection with Graham and her possible knowledge of the murder of Sarah Graham was scathing. "The first I ever saw her was on the platform making speeches deeply affecting my sympathies. As an orator she is second to few. I regret to say she was engaged in illicit love with a murderer; she has descended from the high position she formerly held. In the letter she wrote to Mr. Howell she says she never knew of the second marriage of Graham, but she wants Mr. Howell to defend him further. What for? How did it occur to Mrs. Molloy that Charles 'may have signed his father's life away?' She knew that forgery and bigamy were not punishable by death. It hits too near the mark to be an accident. Graham confessed more to her than 'forgery.'"

Hubbard closed by making the resume of the case, which he calls upon the defense to answer:

As to Cora Lee: 1st, her bigamous relations with 2d, her knowledge of Sarah being Graham's wife, 3d, her absence from the farm the night of September 30th; 4th, her having been known to have been at Brookline that night; 5th, her presence at the well with Graham and her excitement when seen by Connolly; 6th, her conversation with Charles Graham as to the whereabouts of her mother; 7th, her silence as to what had become of Sarah; 8th, her knowledge as to the presence of Sarah Graham's bible, album, etc., in the house; 9th, her visit to the well with Brumley; 10th, her conversation with Anderson; 11th, her probably being in Springfield the night of September 30th; 12th, the motive of Graham for shielding her and his false account of the facts of the killing; 13th, that the woman was shot and not killed with a knife; 14th, the fact that the lady was not thrown in the well, but let down by some appliance; 15th, her efforts to prevent conversation with the children; 16th, her not wanting the children to see what came out of the well; 17th, the fact that Sarah did not walk to the farm, but was conveyed, as shown by the circum-stances; 18th, the clothing sent back about the pasture; 19th, her determination to have Sarah out of the way; 20th, burning the letters on the day the body was found.

On October 26th while Sarah Graham was lying murdered in the well Graham had his boy, Charlie, write a letter to Mrs. Breeze at Fort Wayne, purporting to be dictated by Sarah Graham to the boy as she had the rheumatism. The supreme impudence of this is appreciated when the woman impersonated was lying in the well dead only a few hundred feet from where the letter was being written. It was signed "from Sarah to Abbie."

AUBURN, Maine, March 30.—A Cushman & Co., shoe manufacturers, employing 750 hands, have submitted a plan of co-operation to their employees. The members of the firm are to receive stated salaries, and after paying interest and repairs, the balance of the earnings is to be distributed among the men in the proportion that each contributes to the product.

PROMINENT CITIZENS.

Dr. Wise, the Jewish Rabbi—and David Sinton the Millionaire Speculator.

(Special Correspondence.)
CINCINNATI, March 30.—This conservative, wealthy old town has many distinguished citizens. They are public spirited, too, and have done much for the place of their habitation. The city has for years been cited with and governed by rings of local politicians, first of one party, then the other. It is these that have given Cincinnati her bad name for riots, election unpleasantness and things. The city has within its borders at once some of the best and some of the worst people in the United States.

Some of her best citizens are the two gentlemen whose pictures appear herewith.

Dr. Wise is the principal Jewish pastor.

For many years he has been known as the leader of the advanced and modernized Hebrew religious thought, not only in Cincinnati, but in all the adjacent region. He is a distinguished writer on social, metaphysical and theological topics, and a man of remarkable learning and intellectual power. He fraternizes with Christians more than most Jewish rabbis theologians do. He is the rabbi of the Union street synagogue, which is the church of many of the prominent and wealthy Jewish people in this city of Hebrews. Rabbi Wise is identified with the best interests of morality and reform, both in Jewish and Christian circles. He is a brilliant and forcible speaker.

David Sinton is another of Cincinnati's most worthy men. He was born in North Ireland, and is of Scotch-Irish blood. When 5 years old he came to Pittsburgh, Pa., with his parents. He received a plain English education at the public schools. I don't know how old he is, because I don't think he tells that part of his history.

He is a millionaire now, is Mr. Sinton, but he began life as a clerk at $4 a month and board, at Sinking Springs, this state. This was when he was 16. But even at that tender age he saved money, and in course of time got enough together to start as a commission merchant in Cincinnati. But here he failed, as most millionaires, as well as other people do, in the start. He gave up the commission business and went to the Hanging Rock iron region. Gradually he was drawn more and more deeply into the iron trade, and in this he made his fortune. In 1849 he came back to Cincinnati. Here he engaged in various business enterprises, real estate, manufacturing and other things. In these he was unusually successful. Of the money thus earned he has spent generously for the good of others, and this is his best claim to having his picture printed in the newspapers. He gave $100,000 to the new boys' home and the Berlin, a United enterprise. He paid a debt for the Young Men's Christian association of $33,000. He has also made various other gifts to Cincinnati, including a large one to the new art museum. Other public institutions have shared his munificence. The new boys owe it to him that they have a handsome and comfortable home down by the river. A fine portrait of their benefactor hangs in the reception room. His private charities are very large, but concerning these he lets not his right hand know what his left hand doeth.

Mr. Sinton is a man of great decision and self-reliance. He is large and fine looking. His black eyes are still bright with the fire of youth. He is a man with a square chin. His manners in private life are modest and quiet.

FIERCE FLAMES.

Fires Cause Destruction of Property and Death.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.
KEY WEST, Fla., March 30.—A fire started in the San Carlos theater at 1 o'clock this morning and is still burning and beyond the control of the firemen. The Episcopal and Baptist churches were burned, together with thirty other buildings, stores and residences.

Over fifty houses have been already burned, including the masonic hall, three or four cigar factories and the bonded warehouses, containing nearly a quarter of a million dollars worth of tobacco. Officers from the United States steamers Brooklyn and Powhatan have been blowing up some houses with powder. There is no water supply. It is now settled that the fire will not stop until it reaches the harbor. It is now entering the business part of the city. The loss will be very great.

Key West, Fla., 4 p. m.—Intense heat and lack of engines and water will probably result in the total destruction of the city.

Detroit, Mich., March 30.—A special to the Journal says: A terrible fire visited Bronson this morning and two persons burned to death and several badly injured. Loss about $20,000. A fine new brick block of stores was destroyed. Mrs. Timothy Hurley and her daughter May, aged fifteen years, were burned to death. Mr. Hurley and three children, a boy aged sixteen, another ten, and a baby about two and a half years old were terribly burned. Charles Strachey, a baker employed by Mr. Hurley, is badly cut about the head. Four stores were burned. Loss $16,000. Sheriff Whitaker had one of his legs cut very badly by the falling of a heavy plate glass.

WATERLOO, Ind., March 30.—At 12 o'clock last night fire burned nearly the entire business portion of North Liberty, an inland town near Waterloo. The postoffice, with all the books, was entirely destroyed. Loss, $14,000; insurance, $2,500. The fire was incendiary.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 30.—The frame house of R. S. Davis, of Union township, burned, caused by a defective flue. Loss, $1,500; insured for $1,250 in the Ohio Farmers.

AN INDIANA SPLIT.

Lowry and Anti-Lowry—"You're a Liar"—A Postoffice Knock-down.

Special Telegram to Cincinnati Enquirer.
WATERLOO, Ind., March 29.—The democratic convention for Union township was held at Auburn Saturday to nominate township officers and delegates to the congressional convention. As the faithful assembled a decided split was noticed between the Lowry and anti-Lowry, and the latter having gained control by electing the chairman and secretary, and utterly ignoring the former, they withdrew and each nominated a delegate. Finally the Lowry returned with Chas. Voss as their delegate, the anti in the meantime nominating Mr. Seiler, hardware merchant, and the general convention will have to decide which of the two shall vote.

As the meeting closed "You're a liar" came from near the judge's stand, and instantly a the clonched fist of Gen. L. C. Blair was seen retreating from the left of the genial postmaster, Ab. Kelley, the latter being a Lowry man. The contact produced fire in the postmaster's brain, who thereupon embraced the general, snote him to the floor with a sickening thud, proceeded to paint in lasting colors a series of hyetographs upon the general's face and total annihilation might have resulted, but for the timely interposition of friends. The two men have not been warm friends of late, each being an aspirant for the postoffice, hence the Congressional Lowry and anti-Lowry factions. Such actions as these will have to cease, or a hot election day will see a Waterloo defeat will be the result.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Secretary Manning is about the same as yesterday.

Civil-service reform comes hard, because the evils against which it is aimed have been long entrenched in the body politic and can only be removed by heroic treatment. Because an abuse is of long standing, however, is no reason why it should be tolerated, and the assertion of such a principle is without rhyme or reason. Diseases which afflict the human body are not looked upon as blessings because long endured, nor should those which afflict the state be considered so. Everything which is inconsistent with the most perfect working of the body and government must be gotten rid of. Such, at least, is the belief of Mr. W. D. Murphy, of No. 810 Vandeventer street, Indianapolis, who has recently been cured of rheumatism of twenty-five years' standing by that great remedy, Athlophores. Age gave the disease no charm in his eyes, and he swept it away at the first opportunity. He himself tells all about the matter in this way:

"My rheumatism dates way back about twenty-five years. I first contracted it in the war, in which I served four years and six months. After returning home from service the disease seemed to assume a periodical form. I would have at least two severe attacks every year, but even between these attacks I would suffer all the time. These attacks prevented me from getting about, and many times I could not walk or get out of bed. They would catch me in the legs so that after standing awhile I would feel suddenly weak and in danger of falling."

"Was it during one of these attacks that you used Athlophores?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"Yes; that's the time and that's when it did its work for me. I saw it advertised and sent to B. Brehm, the druggist on Columbia avenue, for a bottle. It was in the afternoon I took the first dose and then at night I took another. I slept soundly that night. The next morning when I awoke I had no pain. I took a few doses more, only using about two-thirds of a bottle altogether and my rheumatism was all gone. That is over a year ago and I have only felt a little twinge of the pain since, but nothing to speak of."

"Do you know of any others who have used Athlophores?"

"Yes. I have recommended it to many different persons. My confidence was so great in the medicine that in several instances I have bought bottles of it and given them to people, saying at the time that if it did not do its work they need not pay for it; but there is not a single case in which I did not have my money within a week. There is Mrs. Wright, an aged lady of seventy, living a few miles from here, who, after suffering from rheumatic pains for fifteen years, was entirely rid of all pain by three or four bottles of Athlophores. I recommended another lady who was supposed to be suffering from dyspepsia, but who in reality had neuralgia of the stomach, to try Athlophores, and it soon cured her. My neighbor, who had a severe attack of neuralgia, his face being swollen out of all shape, was cured by a few doses. My confidence in Athlophores is very strong, and I believe that if any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia will take it right it will cure ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. It is worth $100 a bottle to every sufferer from rheumatism."

If you cannot get Athlophores of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from our druggist, but if it is sent to you by mail, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed, ATHLOPHORES CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

could do to make Benson's Capelin Phosphors the best purgative, and also the best general external remedy in the world, has been done. Whenever it is possible to improve them, it is done. Benson's Phosphors are not made to improve upon the credulous, but to cure disease. OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1886.

A WELL-KNOWN lady of Macon has a curious superstition. Upon entering a room for the first time she stands in the center and bows to each corner. She declares that this exhibition of politeness is intended to propitiate the spirits.

BISHOP PETERSEN, of West Virginia, has undertaken to found a hospital, orphanage and home in the Kanawha Valley, the heart of the great mining region of West Virginia. He aims to raise $25,000, about $2,000 of which has already been subscribed and paid.

MRS. JENNY LIND GOLDSCHMIDT, with refreshing frankness foreign to her class, confesses that for the past twenty-five years she has kept her vocal organs at their proper pitch by yelling at her children. Her years and voice now entitle her to a place in the front row of serio-comic singers.

A WILMINGTON (Del.) paper, in announcing the death at that place of Henry B. Courtney, of the Diamond Match Company, assures a skeptical world that the secret of making parlor matches is now known to but one man, Mr. Courtney's son. Mr. Courtney's son may think he has a monopoly, but nevertheless matches will continue to be made in every parlor in the land where an agreeable young woman can be found, and the Wilmington man can't help himself.

STEAMBOAT FRANK, a Modoc Indian, who was captured at the time of the Modoc war, and who is still a prisoner of the United States, is attending, by permission of the Government, the Oak Grove Seminary in Maine. He now calls himself Frank Modoc, and is studying for the ministry. He is making good progress in his studies, and is apparently a devout Christian. He is proud of his descent from a long line of Modoc chieftains, and conducts himself with true Indian dignity.

THE new prohibition law in Georgia is causing the revival of ancient methods of evasion. A countryman rode into Athens the other day, and soon his horse showed every symptom of being very ill. He lay down, and rolled, and seemed to be in pain. A doctor was called, who gave a prescription that included a quart of whisky. Having got his whisky, the Georgian spoke to the horse, which at once jumped to his feet, and made off with his master on his back. The venerable "striped pig" may yet find a home in Georgia.

THE Japanese and palm fans are turned to all kinds of uses in the way of wall ornaments, work-bags, etc. The paper fans have satin bags over the lower part of the ribs, and two fastened together make a circle of color admirable for wall decoration. One, joined round, and the end sticks out, covers a flower pot well. The last use for a palm fan is to cover with plush, bordered with gold braid, and in the center to fasten a photograph edged with the gold braid. It should be laid on cornerwise.

A COLUMN or more of solid nonpareil type is devoted to each leading London paper to an account of Miss Gladstone's wedding, the list of gifts occupying two-thirds of that space. Among the objects whose presentation was supposed to add to the joy of the occasion were six checks for an aggregate of $2,500, three watches, eight brooches, one pincushion, a score of silver cream-jugs, a silver-mounted magnifying-glass, a "weighing machine," a portrait of the ill-fated Lord Frederick Cavendish, and the following books: Cardinal Newman's Sermons, Ruskin's works, Carlyle's works, George Eliot's works, Shakespeare, Miss Procter's poems, Clough's poems, Chopin's works for the pianoforte, Tennyson's works (from Hon. Hallam Tennyson), and "The Epic of Hades" (from the author). Tea-trays, inkstands, and candlesticks were too multitudinous for counting.

THE Western Union Telegraph Company has declared a dividend of 14 per cent, payable in scrip, amounting, on its $80,000,000 of watered stock, to $1,200,000. The quarterly report up to March 31 shows a net "balance" of $5,008,688, including the "surplus." But of this, $4,500,000 has been used to purchase competing "telegraph properties," so that the actual balance will be $508,688 only. Out of this must come the amount of the State judgment for taxes. There is no money, therefore, to pay the dividend, so the directors announce that it will be paid in "certificates of indebtedness," to be redeemed in stock when the company secures authority to increase its capital stock.

KENTUCKY HIGHWAYS.

You will not find elsewhere in America such highways as the Kentuckians have constructed all over their country—broad, smooth, level, white, glistening turnpikes of the macadamized limestone. It is a luxury to drive upon them, and also an expense, as one will discover before he has passed through many toll-gates. He could travel more cheaply on the finest railway on the continent, though of course it will not be himself, but his horses and vehicle, that are paid for. What Richard Grant White thought it worth while to record as a rare and interesting sight—a man on an English highway breaking stones—is no uncommon occurrence here. All limestone for all these hundreds of miles of road, having been quarried here and there, almost anywhere, near each of them, and then being hauled carbed and strewn along the road-side, is broken by a hammer in the hand of a man. By the highway he sits—usually an Irishman—pecking away at a long rugged pile as though he were good to live for a thousand years. Somehow, in patience, he always gets to the other end of his hard row. But if, some bright Easter morn, you sit for a moment beside him, and speak to him sympathetically of labor and of life, his tears will sprinkle his dusty hands, showing his heart is elsewhere.

One cannot sojourn long here without coming to conceive an interest in this limestone, and loving to meet its rich warm hues on the landscape. It has made a deal of history: limestone blue-grass, limestone water, limestone roads, limestone fences, limestone bridges and arches, limestone engineering architecture, limestone water-mills, limestone spring-houses and homesteads—limestone Kentuckians! Outside of Scripture no people was ever so like to be founded on a rock. It might be well to note, likewise, that the soil of this region is what the scientists call sedimentary—called so because it sits quietly on the rocks, not because the people sit quietly on it.

Undoubtedly the most picturesque bits in the blue-grass country, architecturally, are those old stone water-mills and old stone homesteads—landmarks each for separate trains of ideas that run to poetry and to history. The latter, built some of them by descendants of pioneers nearly a hundred years ago, stand gray with years, but good for nameless years to come: great low chimneys, deep little windows, thick walls, mighty fire-places; situated usually with keen discretion on an elevation near a spring, just as a Saxon forefather would have placed them centuries ago. Happily one will see the water of this spring issuing still from a recess in a hill-side, with an overhanging ledge of rock—the entrance to this cavern being walled across and closed with a gate, thus making, according to ancient fashion, a simple natural spring-house and dairy.—James Lane Allen, in Harper's Magazine.

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring—1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a great amount of good now at any other time. Take it now.

DR. A. C. HOBBS' CERTAIN CROUP CURE. This preparation, a private and original prescription, was extensively used in an unlimited practice for many years, with perfect success by the late A. C. Hobbs, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y. Having thoroughly tested and tried this remedy, he had no hesitation in pronouncing it positive, swift, and sure to cure Croup in its most aggravated form when administered promptly and according to directions. Its powerful and direct effect upon the diseased mucous membrane, renders it particularly valuable to those afflicted with a distance from a physician—as it is added to economy to call in professional aid. If the "Croup Cure" is near at hand, while the child is in bed, it can be given in a few minutes, and the child can have a delicious and nutritious food upon the system. The most delicate infant may take it, and it will be perfectly safe. Price $1.00. For sale by all druggists, grocers, and retail.

The Morning Dress.

It is said that a lady's standing in society can easily be determined by her dress at the breakfast-table; an expensive, showy costume indicating that the wearer has not yet learned the proprieties. THE STAGE.
Notes and Gossip About the Theater and Theater People.

MARY ANDERSON WILL RETIRE.
An Improbable Story—How Bronson Howard Works—Extravagance of Actors—Stage Chat, Etc.

At the close of the present season she will rest for a year or two. Dr. Hamilton Griffin, when asked, this morning, said it would undoubtedly be two years before she reappeared upon the stage. Her friends here say she has not been in good health for some time, and has grown rather thin with overwork. It is hoped by many that a portion of this two years' leave of absence will be spent with friends here, though no definite promise has been gained. Louisville Times.

A Manager's Enterprise.
Manager (to beautiful young actress who has just made a successful debut)—You have exceeded my expectations. You have only to get well advertised and the public will adore you. Are you married?

Beautiful young actress (hesitatingly)—No, no.

M.—Then you must elope with somebody at once. It doesn't matter much who it is, although a rich dude would be best.

D. Y. A. (blushing deeply)—I beg your pardon, I could not do that. To tell the truth, since it must come out, I am married.

M.—Oh, you are? Very well then. You must get a divorce from your husband. Big thing. Full publicity. I'll have a lawyer draw up the papers right away. —Boston Courier.

How Bronson Howard Works.
Bronson Howard, who has evidently been inspired in his work by an honest literary ambition, always carefully maps out his plot before he thinks of anything else, although all the while he has his eyes and ears open studying characters which he intends to utilize some day in a play. Having completed the development of his story to the end, so that that part of the work is off his mind; having, so to speak, secured the cloth, he proceeds to cut it in the shape he has adopted, he arranges his climaxes and certain scenes. He inclines to four acts, the introductory, the beginning, the development, the end. He selects his characters, develops their business, and then devotes himself to the dialogue. He never forces himself to work, and is very lenient with his muse, indeed.

He generally prepares everything mentally and seldom rewrites, never putting anything on paper until he is thoroughly satisfied with it. He never feels his work is done until the play is produced, and the usual rehearsal the next morning is over. He does not care to work under contract, because he does not like to be forced in his work, and is satisfied if he writes one drama a year. He prefers to develop his own inspirations rather than take hints for a drama to order. His more successful works have been entirely original, while his ordered plays, like the "Baron Rudolph" for the Knights, and "Run in a Greenroom" for the Salisbury Troubadours, were not so successful, which he attributes to the fact that he was hampered in their development by the requirements of those for whom they were written. —New York Star.

An Improbable Story.

In the early days of newspapers they used to pay theatrical managers for items of information. Considering the extent to which advertisement by canvas has been pushed of late, it is lucky for newspapers that they have abandoned this custom. In these days we are informed as to the many thousands actresses pay for their diamonds, wigs, dresses, hats, cloaks, etc., and American theatrical managers go so far as to advertise the salaries and fees of their leading actresses. The latest "boom" comes to us from France. Mr. Abbey and Maurice Gran are said to have engaged Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at a salary of £140 a night, a percentage on the receipts above a stipulated sum ("which," it is reckoned, will double her salary), and to pay all her expenses and those of three attendants for a tour in America of twelve months. Mr. Pierre Berton is also engaged to support her at a salary of £400 a month. If we reckon wardrobe, journeys, Mme. Bernhardt's expenses (no small item), the expenses of her servants, the salaries of the other members of the company, at these fees, scenery, etc., at the same time, this means we are asked to believe that two practical business Americans imagine they are going to "pay to" a sum of £250,000 a year. In the face of the facts that Mme. Bernhardt is not new to America, that Mr. Wilton Barrett is sure to be the "cog" there, and that next year, with the railway war, is likely to be a very bad theatrical twelvemonth in the States, we are asked to believe that Mme. Bernhardt will play to £228 2s. 3d. a performance, and that she will net 313 times in the year—neither of which she is very likely to do. —St. James's Gazette.

Extravagance of Actors.
Curious traits are shown by actors during their travels. At home in time of vacation they may lead an almost laudable life, but as soon as they start out on the road again they develop striking idiosyncrasies. One peculiar trait of a number of famous "stars" is extravagance. This is a trait found especially among the men. None of the stars of the present day, however, equal Fechter in reckless expenditure. He was a genuine Monte Cristo, living in sumptuousness so ruinous that he died an impoverished, broken-down, broken-hearted man. Fechter was an outcast as well as a gastronomic gourmet. For he had in his private apartments a table set with delicate edibles and wines, which he had changed every few hours, even if they had not been touched, because they offended his sight. His hotel bills amounted to some $400 weekly.

The most extravagant liver among stars of to-day is Bonicault, though he is not reckless as was Fechter. He puts up at the best hotels, and always has a well-spread table in his parlor, but he contents himself with having it replenished. A bottle of champagne does not offend his eye until it is empty. He is hale, hearty, and lusty, and a "marvelous man," as he is called in the profession, especially since he married again.

Booth is a hermit, caring for the society of only a few warm friends. He is an inveterate smoker and a great coffee drinker. He lives well, but not extravagantly. Barrett is the social lion of the profession, having everywhere a host of society friends. Salvini, not being proficient in the English language, mingles only with friends of his own nationality. He has the reputation of being close. The Florences live expensively.

A writer on the idiosyncrasies of star actresses has found but few instances of downright extravagance among them, for most of them, while living well, do not live extravagantly. An exception was Adelaide Neilson, who lived in royal style and entertained so lavishly that there was usually a row of empty bottles outside her door. Among actresses of to-day Modjeska excels the most elegant surroundings. She always occupies a number of rooms en suite—two bedrooms, a parlor, a dining-room, and a boudoir. These are for herself and her husband, extra rooms being engaged for the maids. In the furnishing of her suite of rooms two things are indispensable—a piano in the parlor and an open-grate fire in the dining-room, with an English hob to put the kettle on. Like all Solars she and her husband are great tea-drinkers. They carry their special tea with them—a particular kind of Assam Valley Chop. They also have their own kettle, which they use in their private car when traveling among the one-night stands. Modjeska is an informal entertainer and the passports to her hospitality are neither wealth nor rank, but talent and a good appetite. One of her maids is the Hannah who served poor Adelaide Neilson. Fanny Davenport travels with her husband, physician and maid. She is really an invalid, and has been known to leave the stage in the middle of a scene to receive an injection of morphine from the doctor, who is in constant attendance behind the scenes. Since she began to play Fedora she leads a retired life, as the part is the most exacting and exhausting that has ever been written. Mary Anderson lives economically on her travels and spends her money during her vacation. Januschek, being herself a good cook, picks out her hotels according to the reputation of their chefs. —New York Mail and Express.

Stage Chat.

MINNIE ALDEN, the actress, writes love stories.

A St. Louis paper calls Mary Anderson the female Edwin Forrest of the American stage.

Mrs. Prescott, the actress, has taken to the lecture field and gives her experience "Among the Stars." She speaks of Salvini as the "star of stars."

Mrs. Lantry seems to be attempting to revolutionize the present craze for gorgeous apparel on the stage, as in her new piece, "Enemies," an adaptation by Mr. George Coghan, the brother of Rose Coghan, the dresses are all very plain and simple. Whether she will succeed is to be doubted.

It is likely that Mr. Lawrence Barrett will protect Mr. Baker's "Ghosts" during his next engagement at the New York Star Theater, which begins in August. This is a drama in verse based upon Bulwer's "Last Days of Pompeii." Mr. Barrett will be Gaius. The concluding scene of the play will represent the eruption of Vesuvius. During Mr. Wilton Barrett's engagement at the Star, "Clandine," which ends with an earthquake, will be produced.

With Pleasure.
WILLIAMSPORT, Ind., March 27.
Editor Sentinel: In THE SENTINEL of March 21 there appeared an item in reference to Mr. Frank Zuber, a young man of Marion township, this county, which I desire to have rectified. The item reads as follows: "Mr. Frank Zuber, near Poe, this county, was declared insane. His mania arises from bad habits." I am pleased to say that I have known him long and intimately; that his personal character is above reproach, and that he had no evil habits. His alienation arises from cerebral atrophy. Hoping that you will correct the misapprehension, I remain yours, truly,
Geo. N. WOLFE, M. D.

"Many cases of fever and ague, dumb ague and congestive chills, were promptly arrested and entirely banished by the use of your Simmons Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of your valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fever, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. Believe me, when I say I was a sufferer for years with liver disease, and only found relief by using your medicine."

The copper strike at Terre Haute has ended, and the men have resumed work.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly, and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones.—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Elton, Co.

I find Ely's Cream Balm good for catarrh of long standing.—M. N. Lasley, 1834 West Chestnut St., Louisville.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-codwlv.

May 1.

The democratic county central committee met this afternoon. Mr. William Kaough called the meeting to order and Louis Fox acted as secretary. After routine business Mr. Kaough resigned, saying it was not customary for postmasters to mingle in politics. This makes 44 votes in all, giving each township 1 vote save Wayne and St. Joe, who get 2 votes each. The Fifth Seventh and Eighth wards got 3 votes each, and all the other wards 2 votes.

The county convention will be held September 4.
